Other than Koshiary, the convention was also attended by Bihar Chief Minister Nitish Kumar and general secretary of Socialist International Luis Ayala.

"India wants to see a prosperous and strong Nepal. I want to see Nepal to be connected with India through railway line very soon," Koshiary said.

former Prime Minister and Congress senior leader Sher Bahadur Deuba also sed the convention.

is confronting economic crisis due to the devastating earthquake and blockade in the southern border and there is an urgent need to face these challenges and rebuild the economy of the country," Deuba said.

"Nepali congress has the responsibility of resolving the Madhesi issues by addressing their remaining demands including those related boundary demarcation and strengthening ties with India, which have become cool in the recent period," said Deuba.

Nepali congress general secretary Prakash Man Singh underlined the need to holding local level elections at the earliest for making the foundations of democracy stronger.

Now after promulgating the new constitution under its leadership the Nepali Congress has got the responsibility of bringing political stability in the country through implementing the constitution in a proper way, he said.

"After attaining political stability and restoring peace through the implementation of the constitution, now we should focus our attention towards attaining economic prosperity by mobilising the natural resources including water resources at our disposal," Singh said.

Over 25,000 people had gathered at the grand public meeting organised by the party. The popular Nepali Congress has some 600,000 members.

NC pursues the ideology of democratic socialism and is known for its centrist policies. The closing session of the general convention will start tomorrow here. PTI SBP UZM
